

you can't repress the technology. The Soviets know this and have kept up their weapons development to the present day.

I think the only really effective way of concluding some meaningful arms negotiations — and this is the one thing of Carter's outlook that holds promise — is to totally ban nuclear weapons. Only total abolition, as Carter said it, could make that sort of thing work.

Q: What other issues will be tied to SALT? What about the human rights issue?

Rostow: Well, trade will be involved, naturally. The Soviets are not too fazed by human rights announcements. They have the situation well under control. They are sensitive to it, though, as a result of 1968. They're a paranoid bunch, you know, and they see it from the standpoint: "once this stuff starts, how do you stop it?" But I think that this time they have the edge to head anything like that off.

Korry Anticipates 'Carter's Watergate'

Speaking Wednesday night Feb. 16 at Harvard University, former U.S. Ambassador to Chile Edward Korry declared that "It will be Jimmy Carter's Watergate" if he intervenes to squelch the indictments of former ITT chief executive Howard Gennen and former Director of Central Intelligence Richard Helms, who are "implicated in murder in Chile." This charge was carried on an Associated Press national wire picked up on WNCN radio in New York City.

Korry declared that there was continuity of U.S. policy in Chile dating from collaboration between the Kennedy's and David Rockefeller in the early 1960s, and exploded what he termed the "morality fable" of U.S. foreign policy, that the Democrats were good and that Nixon and Ford were corrupt. In reality, said Korry, U.S. foreign policy as initiated under the Kennedy's continued unbroken through Henry Kissinger's National Security Council, involving Hubert Humphrey, Eugene Mc-

Carthy, George McGovern, Walter Mondale and "the bubble-headed liar, Church."

Korry told the audience that "It all began right here at Harvard University in 1963, with an extraordinary meeting of the Board of Overseers, where Bobby Kennedy enlisted David Rockefeller to form the Businessmen's Alliance for Latin America....Louis Oberdorfer, RFK's assistant attorney general was ITT's chief counsel, and Richard Goodwin was the man behind Kennedy."

Asked if U.S. policy on payment of the Chilean foreign debt during Allende's regime were not the same debt collection policy being followed by David Rockefeller and other New York bankers toward Third World nations today, Korry acknowledged that the poor countries could not repay their debts now. When a spokesman for a U.S. Maoist weekly attempted to question Korry's testimony, he informed the crowd that the Maoists in Italy had collected money for Chilean dictator Pinochet.

Korry: Mission 'Truth Squad'

In an interview Feb. 18, following his call to "watergate" Jimmy Carter if he attempts to quash the indictments of Harold Geneen and Richard Helms, former U.S. ambassador to Chile Edward Korry explained that he views his recent outspoken role in U.S. foreign policy as that of a one-man "truth squad." Korry explained that he found the role thrust upon him in March, 1976, when he became disturbed that "leaks" emanating from Senator Frank Church's Senate Multinationals Subcommittee investigations were presenting a distorted view of U.S. foreign policy — one slanted to whitewash the very people who are behind the Carter Administration, such as David Rockefeller, Cyrus Vance, et. al.

Korry said that he called then-Director of Central Intelligence William Colby and asked to see Colby's secret testimony before the Church committee: Colby declined, but led Korry to believe that he shared Korry's belief that the Church "leaks" were distorted. Based on this conversation, Korry committed himself publicly to the view he thought Colby shared, and was then shocked and angered to find not long afterwards — when the Colby testimony was leaked to the press — that Colby was the source of these very distorted leaks.

Korry decided at that point that the whole story had to come out, beginning his series of blockbuster revelations which have effectively confirmed charges that the CIA has become a tool for carrying out the policies of such private interests as David Rockefeller. For the present, Korry is determined to see that the Carter Administration does not quash the indictment of former CIA head Richard Helms — who guided the agency when so much of the Rockefeller-Vance-et.-al. policy making was going on. With Carter's close ties to David Rockefeller a matter of public record, Ambassador Korry's charges provide Carter foes with powerful ammunition to use against his administration.
