

How To End Terrorism In Italy

ITALY

The following is a statement issued by the Executive Committee of the International Caucus of Labor Committees in Wiesbaden, West Germany April 29.

Unless the following program is immediately put into effect in Italy, the current wave of terrorism will continue and will escalate.

First, all childish parliamentary and diplomatic evasions of the nature of terrorism must stop. The sources of terrorism must be correctly identified, otherwise all efforts to halt terrorism will fail.

There is currently an international wave of terrorism coordinated by Zbigniew Brzezinski from the U.S. White House. The principal networks involved are, first, the Interpol organization, second, elements of Israeli intelligence, and third, the U.S.-based "neo-Fabian" network. The most important bases for the terrorism in Italy are: The Tyrol-Austria-Southern Germany fascist bastion, Paris Interpol and its safe-houses in (especially) Southern France, and the Madrid Skorzeny-OAS-Opus Dei focal point. All principal terrorist deployments involve these organizations and those official and private networks which directly interface them.

Second, the only method for rooting out terrorism is a special application of "seal and search."

1. The "borders must be sealed" by the following and related measures: Interpol must be expelled from Italy, and Interpol-interfacing agencies closed down, and all police and intelligence relationships with nations and with NATO which continue to cooperate with Interpol must be treated as contaminated and placed under intensive control and surveillance for this purpose; the Tyrol must be cleaned up, and a tight security maintained on the Austrian border connection to fascist organizations in Austria and Southern Germany; the French border must be controlled for the same purpose; all Italian conduits for certain Rockefeller-allied think-tanks must be treated as principal conduits for coordination and auxiliary assistance to terrorist operations; all neo-Fabian networks — Maoist and allied types of "countercultural" groupuscles supporting "zero growth" must be under close surveillance as well as analogous youth organizations of a fascist profession; certain persons attached to U.S. embassy "covers" for Brzezinski's purposes must be surveilled as Interpol-related operatives.

2. Intensive and extensive pursuit of terrorist connections and their covers and conduits must be conducted.

These measures will not, of course, root out every terrorist or prevent operations from being deployed. However, these measures will massively disrupt the command and control of the terrorist networks. By disrupting the command and control, the cleaning up of terrorism can be conducted as a systematic mopping-up operation.

Every day's vacillation and delay in taking such measures means more deaths of friends, family members and so forth. No consideration is sufficiently powerful to prevent the government and people of Italy from exerting national sovereignty to protect the nation and its people from the Brzezinski-Interpol-Israeli terror wave.

The article which is excerpted below, by Guido Capato, appeared in Giorni Vie Nuove, an Italian cooperatively-owned weekly close to the Communist Party.

The article, the first of a five-part series, fingers the National Student Association and Johns Hopkins University — which operates a branch in Bologna — as having worked for one faction of the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency in creating the anti-communist "left" student movement which caused the riots throughout Italy and killings in Bologna last month. Such a sophisticated analysis of the divisions in the "intelligence community" and the "left-wing" deployments of its anti-traditionalist wing has never before appeared in the Italian press.

It is no secret to anyone that since way back in 1962, the CIA has attempted by all possible means to impose a hard line in our country, and in substance, its agents have taken measures to unleash chaos in order to justify the intervention of tanks. Thus the war in Alto Adige (South Tyrol terrorism, 1960s —ed.), where our army had to intervene as an occupation force. Then the various coup attempts under the patronage of the SIFAR and SID (Italian military intelligence services —ed.) and the neo-fascist groups ("Year Zero", MAR, "Mussolini Action Squads," etc.; then the "Red Brigades," the "Armed Proletarian Nuclei," the "New Partisans," "Combatants for Communism," and so forth. The results have been bombings, massacres, kidnappings, robberies. The state never caved in even though public opinion has remained extremely upset. At this point, the CIA's imagination directed its attention to all these little extreme-left grouplets who protest everything and everybody just on principle. At Langley (Virginia: CIA headquarters —ed.) they thought that was the sector to operate on. And so, that is just what they did.

How "Worker Autonomy" Was Born

Having verified that most of the grouplets were made up of students, they hatched an operation which the leaders of the National Students Association would be just crazy about. In fact a massive recruiting operation of students began to send them into Italy after a due period of training to infiltrate the protest groups who did not limit themselves to attacking the DC (the Christian Democrats —ed.) and MSI (neofascist party —ed.) but turned their rage principally against the PCI (Communist Party), considered the political force which is the most organized and determined to guard democratic institutions. Anyway even in the USA the papers have spoken of the PCI in these terms, dwelling on the model of Emilian and Romagna. It was clear that they had to intervene in this reality. It was not to be the DC and the fascists who would hammer away at the government but the extra-parliamentary left, so as to make it appear that in the model region the left was contesting the regime. After an attentive examination of the profiles of the existing protest groups in Langley, the conclusion was reached that they had to create these groups out of whole cloth, with particular anticommunist traits. And so a few agents provocateur recruited in the Californian (sic) University of Johns Hopkins set off for Italy, with the task of organizing and directing the new provocateur organism. And thus "Worker Autonomy" was born. As we have said, the goal of the new extremists was Bologna, beginning with the malcontents in the university environment.

For this purpose, two years ago, a secure base was also created under the shadow of a well known multinational company, which started operating all over the Emilia Romagna region. Into Worker Autonomy went the fascist lumpenproletariat, such as the members of Remo Casagrande's "New Order" (blackshirt terror outfit —ed.) of Quarto Oggiaro, the "Volsci Street Collective" among whom are arrayed former Pariolini (fascist hoodlums from a wealthy Rome suburb —ed.) formerly in Junius Valerius Borghese's "National Vanguard." In Bologna, the tune is the same: Worker Autonomy is split between the Tuti group of fascists and the Nazimaoists of "People's War." Phase One was the strategy of verbal terror; then Phase Two violence, "Radio Alice" and finally killings.

As we know, it went badly — the Covert Operations Section of Langley repeated in appropriate proportions the fiasco of the Bay of Pigs. And now, from the USA, here come the revelations of the National Students Association. Our security services had been apprised of this matter for some time, but were physically prevented from acting by a hidden force which quashed any attempt at reacting the minute it was brought up.

In interviews, Worker Autonomy did not deny getting money from the CIA or that there are Nazis acting in their ranks.

What is the most frightening is the fact that the American revelations arrive just at the point when President Carter has decided to reduce the CIA's powers. Why, for example, if the NSA knew for two years about the student recruitment, did it not think of unmasking the maneuver until now? It looks to us as though the current leaders of this organization are the same as before, which means that previously they were not authorized to do it. Their maneuver falls into the game of the new government. It is not a moral action to defeat the negative power of the CIA in the world, but has a "clientelistic" significance.

The fact that the NSA has always worked for the CIA is no mystery to anyone in the USA. Hence, one deduces that in this instance as well it is playing the CIA's game and that of its masters. But which group? We are witnessing a ruthless war between top level spies, and that is demonstrated by the fact that the NSA revelations on the strategy of tension in Italy, directed to discredit a certain sector of the CIA, have received from the old foxes in Langley rooted in their armchairs a response in rhymes. They let us know that inside the CIA there is a second CIA, one which operates in favor of the world's leftist governments. For example, this parallel CIA, according to the traditionalists, was what in 1960-63 favored the left shift in Italy (the process by which the first center-left coalition was brought into being under then-Premier Aldo Moro —ed.) . . .

What's Wrong In France?

FRANCE

With the aid of some most inopportune opportunism within the Gaullist RPR leadership, France's President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing is leading that nation back toward a strategically imbecilic thermonuclear parody of the worst colonialist policies of the Fourth Republic. Overall, it must be said that French Gaullism is not dead, but dozing — like a silly calf dreamingly sprawled in a pasture.

The crux of the matter is that up to the end of the recent Paris mayoralty election campaign, the Gaullist RPR led by Michel Debré was for the moment very much in the ascendancy. It was short-sighted and overconfident. Gaullists of the RPR deluded themselves that they could use the financially well-supported careerist Chirac as their Paris mayoral candidate, and with an election victory be on their way to an early reform of the Giscard government. Lawfully, with the inauguration of Chirac as Paris mayor, the Gaullist RPR found itself launched into a wretched rout.

That is the gist of the matter. The point is to understand what those simple facts portend.

Any analysis of Gaullism demands an understanding of four basic facts: the nature of Gaullism itself, the social composition of Gaullism, the critical significance of the petit-bourgeois in French politics and thought generally,
