

Britain's Plan To Ruin Helmut Schmidt

There now exists no doubt about the persons and the motives behind the unfolding of a big new "Commie spy" scandal in Bonn over the past week. Britain's financial oligarchy and its allied terrorist controllers have been using hints provided by the Romanian intelligence official and defector Ion Pacepa to personally ruin West Germany's Chancellor Schmidt at the very height of his popularity, and to halt Schmidt's European Monetary Fund and other development initiatives.

The "Pacepa affair" was launched on the basis of leaks provided by a known British intelligence agent, Robert Moss. Writing in the Daily Telegraph last month, Moss warned — fallaciously — that Schmidt was currently under the influence of Egon Bahr, the Social Democratic Party's business manager, who allegedly advocated West Germany's withdrawal from the NATO military alliance and hence the country's "Finlandization" by the Soviet Union. A government official dismissed the allegations as "baloney."

The same terrorist controller and "China-card" advocate Robert Moss wrote yesterday: "The Pacepa affair suggests that the government spokesman, Mr. Klaus Bölling, acted rashly in trying to dismiss my recent detailed disclosures in this column about secret contacts between left-wing SPD leaders and Moscow as 'baloney.' Watch this space." British intelligence has never issued a clearer warning.

Dire Consequences

Even though the British are working against great odds, the international consequences of their success in destabilizing Chancellor Schmidt would be exceedingly grave — almost as grave as the outbreak of war in the Middle East. At present, the Soviet Union relies on both West Germany and France as forces which can help hold the West away from the path to thermonuclear confrontation, as this path is being defined by British oligarchical circles and their U.S. allies such as Henry Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski. If Schmidt were to be forced out of office and replaced by a vacillating and weak Christian Democratic government subject to British control, or some variation of this, the Soviet leadership would perceive it as a serious weakening of the forces of sanity in the West (and particularly within NATO itself). Under such circumstances, orchestrated confrontations between "left" and "right" groupings in West Germany and elsewhere in Western Europe would eliminate the remaining obstacles to the confrontationist policies of the Bukharinite snake elements (themselves under British aegis) within the Soviet apparatus.

Reliable sources close to West Germany's security services have confirmed that Zionist and "black international" circles are actively preventing West German authorities from effectively eliminating international terrorism. The Israeli Mossad, according to these sources, is threatening to halt all collaboration with West Germany if Chancellor Schmidt requests the extradition of Joachim Klein, a Baader-Meinhof terrorist known to be harbored by Israel. In line with this threat, the London Times has "predicted" a wave of new terrorist "outrages" in West Germany this fall, timed for the anniversary of the kidnapping of the industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer.

Encirclement

The British strategy against Schmidt has three essential elements. First, Schmidt is to be portrayed as "standing alone in his party," as the daily Die Welt put it, and unable to cope with such "Moscow-influenced" colleagues as Egon Bahr. Defector Pacepa, for instance, claimed that Uwe Holtz, a parliamentarian who heads the Committee for Economic Cooperation and Development, is working in the employ of Romanian intelligence. According to Pacepa, Holtz supported the signing of a West German-Romanian aircraft deal on "orders from Romanian intelligence." As Die Welt wrote yesterday, "It is not accidental that influential circles around Brzezinski in the U.S. are worried" about such things.

The second phase concerns the "Communist influenced" left wing of the Social Democratic Party, which in reality is run lock, stock and barrel by Anglo-American intelligence networks. Led by SPD Chairman Willy Brandt, this layer is to be mobilized against the American CIA as the alleged source of the attacks on their party. (For this purpose, it was arranged that the defector Pacepa be handed over to American and not British intelligence.)

Undermining Schmidt Policies

The third element in the offensive is a direct assault on Schmidt and his policies, led by the same "left" elements who are allegedly influencing him.

SPD Vice-Chairman Hans Koschnick has issued a defense of the antinuclear, zero-growth policies of Erhard Eppler, the notorious SPD leftist who runs the party in Baden-Württemberg. In spite of direct criticisms of Eppler from Schmidt's development minister Offergeld, Eppler has continued to outrageously defend the "democratic rights" of people who advocate terrorist acts.
