

A Marriage Made in Hell

In the months preceeding the Nov. 2 elections, many Congressional Democrats accused the Obama White House of sabotaging the party's midterm electoral chances, as part of a devious 2012 reelection strategy, to put the Republicans in the majority in at least one House, and thus permit Obama to blame the GOP for two years of legislative gridlock.

While Democrats were justifiably furious at President Obama and his "Chicago Boys" for wrecking the Democratic Party, and assuring its landslide defeat Nov. 2, this blame game misses the far more vicious reality: The Obama White House is fully in bed with the fascist elements in the Republican Party, typified by Kentucky's U.S. Sen.-elect Rand Paul. It is not political expediency at work here. It is a full-scale commitment to outright fascist Schachtian economic policies of murderous austerity, and the takedown of the Federal government and the states, in a wave of budget cuts.

In an interview with 60 Minutes Nov. 7, Obama boasted that he would slash entitlement programs—Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid—on a scale that would make even the most hard-core libertarian Republicans blink. Within hours of the election, White House staffers were, according to inside sources, plotting with GOP legislators to craft a "bipartisan" Kill America agenda.

The austerity pact, symbolized by the political love affair between Barack Obama and Rand Paul, was also on full display on Nov. 10, when the bipartisan chairs of the President's deficit commission jumped the gun and offered their own slash-and-burn proposals, three weeks before the commission was to present its findings. Alan Simpson, the former Republican Senator, and Democrat Erskine Bowles, the one-time White House chief of staff, proposed cuts so draconian that they would wipe out any chance for an American economic recovery, and would drive all 50 states into chaos. Obama and Paul each issued endorsements of the cuts within hours of one another.

From an historical standpoint, we are witnessing a marriage of treason between the Aaron Burr/Martin Van Buren faction of the Democratic Party, and the Austrian School/Milton Friedman faction of the GOP. What binds the two ostensibly contending groupings together is a slavish loyalty to the British System of political economy—the very system against which we fought our American Revolution. The Tory treason faction, which existed at the time of the Revolution, was never purged from our shores. Instead, they found a home on Wall Street, in the Boston "Vault" and in the slavery system in the South. They penetrated both political parties.

We have now reached a point where the Obama White House, in the spirit of Burr and August Belmont—the Rothschild banker who ran the Democratic Party for decades—is moving, in partnership with the Adam Smith Republicans, to destroy the United States.

It is not political opportunism we are dealing with here. The drive for murderous austerity, coming from Obama and Rand Paul, is a made-in-London marriage from Hell.

When Democrats refused to heed Lyndon LaRouche's call for Obama's removal from office, before the Nov. 2 elections, they sealed their electoral fate for 2010. The lame duck session of Congress is a last opportunity for redemption for any sane Democrats who want to see the country and the party survive. The starting point is to oust Obama and thus secure an annulment of his marriage to Rand Paul and his Republican ilk.
