

Campaign for NAWAPA Hits Pennsylvania

by Diane Sare

Sept. 29—A breakthrough LaRouchePAC Town Hall Meeting was held on Sept. 24, just north of Valley Forge in Pennsylvania. Two of the Six LaRouche Congressional Candidates, Rachel Brown (Mass.), and Diane Sare (N.J.), were joined by LaRouchePAC Basement Team scientist Jason Ross for a challenging panel on the North American Water and Power Alliance (NAWAPA) and the method of thinking required to get it built. Over 130 people were in attendance, including engineers and technical experts whose skills will be essential for the program to succeed.

Up to now, LPAC's campaign for this monumental program to bring water from the Arctic southward through the U.S. and Canada, to supply the arid regions of the U.S. and Mexico, has been mainly through the efforts of the Basement Team, LPAC-TV, and LPAC in the Western states. This Pennsylvania meeting is a first for the East Coast—with more to come.

Just as the meeting was to begin, word was received of the announcement by Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin and President Dmitri Medvedev that they will switch positions in the next election campaign. This clears the way for Putin to become the next President of Russia, with the potential to crush the pro-British Empire forces in Russia, and proceed with the Russian programs for the Far East and Siberia that would be a counterpart to NAWAPA.

Therefore, moderator Ryan Milton's remarks were particularly relevant, as he reminded the audience of the history of U.S.-Russia collaboration, starting with Tsar Alexander II's decision to send Russian Naval vessels to harbor at New York and San Francisco, to support Abraham Lincoln's Union, against British threats to back the Confederacy. Pennsylvania's Civil War governor, Andrew Curtin, would later become U.S. Ambassador to Russia. The Russian scientist Dmitri Mendeleev came to Philadelphia in 1876 for the Centennial Exposition, and it was around this time that the first talk of a Bering Strait connection between continents occurred.

Why We Need NAWAPA

Milton introduced LaRouche candidates Sare and Brown, who addressed the catastrophic nature of the Obama Presidency and the need to immediately build NAWAPA. Sare emphasized the flooding and drought conditions leading to food shortages, and gave an overview of NAWAPA and the massive amount of material and new transport and energy capacity required to build it. Brown began by asking, Who needs Hitler when you have Obama?, and ended up discussing the Earth's magnetic field, and why the polar areas might be so rich in raw materials.

Ross then gave a humorous and polemical class on the subject of economics, whether money has value, and whether anyone in the room could truthfully report ever having seen a straight line. That provoked one person to comment, "That last presentation was something. I flunked algebra, but I understood almost everything he said."

This was a highly successful foray into one of the most historically important productive parts of the United States, which was also the key link between the East Coast and the Arsenal of Democracy, as FDR called the auto-manufacturing center, Detroit, so crucial to defeating British puppet Adolf Hitler almost 70 years ago.
