From the Managing Editor

It may strike you that a number of our headlines this week are punctuated with question marks. This reflects the fact that we are in a period of rapid changes, and what happens next depends on certain incalculable individual actions. But, that's where we (and you) come in.

Our cover celebrates the signing of the July 4, 1776 Declaration of Independence of the American colonies from the British Empire. The Founding Fathers could not predict the outcome of the struggle they were initiating: There were many fearsome battles yet to be waged, and many troubling questions to be answered. But the Founders heroically persevered—and won. But we have not yet rid ourselves of that enemy, as our cover story suggests: “Is the U.S. Finally Ready To Overthrow British Banking?” The predator bankers have come out in their own name—in this case to crush the growing support for Glass-Steagall. Read about the dramatic confrontation in Delaware, and the history of the Anglophile Morgan family: “What in Hell Is JPMorgan Chase?” Lyndon LaRouche’s view of the matter is clear: “For a long period of time, even during the course of this year to date, the opposition to what JPMorgan represents was considered a loser. That has changed, and that is the crucial change. . . .”

America’s historic enemy also comes under attack in the Feature: “Defeat London’s Biofuels Genocide Policy Now!” followed by a discussion on The LaRouche Show, “NAWAPA XXI-Plus Is Not Optional, as Starvation Stalks Mexico, Americas.”

International covers the deepening of the crisis in Syria as Obama begins to arm the “rebels” (read: jihadists), in “Military Steps Provoke Russia as U.S. Resistance Grows”; the election outcome in Iran looks positive, but brings more questions: “Elections Bring Change in Iran: Will the United States Change?” In Economics, we cover the bankruptcy of Detroit, and the breakout in Italy for Glass-Steagall. The National lead asks: “The NSA: Is It American, or British?” Our Science feature is “Operation Buzzkill: The Empire Targets Mars.”

We will skip next week’s issue (July 5), and resume July 12. In the meantime, please check larouchepub.com for updates, including today’s crucial posting, “LaRouche: Only Preemptive Bankruptcy Action vs. the British Can Save the U.S.A.”
