

The Onrushing Fall of the Anglo-Saudi Empire

by Jeffrey Steinberg

July 12—After decades of the most evil activities known to man, the Anglo-Saudi Empire is now on its last legs. There is no doubt that a confluence of major developments, some years in the making, have brought the British Empire and its Saudi Arabian partner to the brink of extinction. The question that is yet to be decided is whether the fall of this dynastic evil will occur through an orderly process, through actions by sovereign forces, largely aligned with the Eurasian powers—Russia, China and India—or whether they will bring down humanity with them, in their fall.

Beyond Rescue

The events that are at the root of this death knell for the British-Saudi Empire, have been grabbing international headlines for months. But it is the cumulative impact of those developments that has been willfully obscured by the mainstream English-language media:

- The recent Brexit vote, withdrawing the United Kingdom from the European Union by referendum, has unleashed a process of disintegration of the United Kingdom itself, with Scotland already planning its second referendum for independence from the UK, and with Northern Ireland moving towards its own referendum to join with Ireland and leave the UK as well. While the process will play out over months and perhaps years, the die has been cast.

- After years of delay, the Chilcot Commission report on the role of Tony Blair and his Cabinet in the rush to war in Iraq in 2003—in partnership with the George W. Bush government in the United States—was finally released early this month. It is a damning indictment of Blair, in particular, as a war criminal guilty of offensive war, in clear violation of the United Nations Charter. Blair is facing lawsuits by families of the British soldiers killed in that illegal war, and there are strong calls for Blair, Bush, Vice President Dick Cheney, Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld, and Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Wolfowitz to all be put on trial at the International Court of Justice in The Hague, just as the perpetrators of the war crimes in Rwanda and Kosovo were.

In the United States, longstanding efforts by the families and survivors of the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks—joined by former U.S. Senator Bob Graham and current Members of Congress Walter Jones, Stephen Lynch, and Thomas Massie—have reached a point at which the release of the 28-page final chapter of the 2002 Joint Congressional Inquiry into 9/11—documenting the role of the Saudi Royal Family and the Saudi government in supporting the Al Qaeda terrorists—is now imminent.

At a Capitol Hill press conference on July 6, Representatives Lynch and Jones made clear that, one way or another—through Presidential or Congressional action, or through public disclosure on the floor of the House—the truth will come out. When the 28 pages are fully released to the American people, there will be an unstoppable demand for an investigation de novo into the worst terrorist crime committed on U.S. soil—and the Saudis and their British partners in the crime’s “Al-Yamamah” offshore black funding will be in the dock.

- On July 12, the House Financial Services Committee issued a report of more than 200 pages exposing the role of the Obama Administration, including the Department of Justice, in blocking prosecution of top executives of HSBC (formerly the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, of British Opium Wars infamy) for the crime of laundering billions of dollars in illegal drug profits for the Mexican and Colombian drug cartels. The same HSBC, according to a 2012 in-depth investigation by the Senate Permanent Investigations Subcommittee, laundered money to Al Qaeda and other jihadist groupings in partnership with leading Saudi Arabian banks.

- The Brexit vote has served as a trigger for an already simmering blowout of the entire trans-Atlantic financial system, a system run from the City of London and its Wall Street appendage. Not only are the Italian banks and “the world’s most dangerous bank,” Deutsche Bank, on the edge of collapse. The London real estate market is another giant bubble that is ready to burst, with some of the initial real estate investment funds facing investor runs and cancelled contracts.

Threat of Thermonuclear War

No empire has ever surrendered power graciously, or indeed without a ferocious fight. The Anglo-Saudi Empire is no exception. London and its pawn in the White House, President Barack Obama, have done everything in their power to create the circumstances for war against Russia and China. Obama and the now-defunct Cameron government in Britain drove the NATO decision to stage one provocation after another against Russia—starting with the 2013-2014 “color revolution” in Ukraine—including the decision last week to deploy NATO forces right up to Russia’s borders in the Baltics states and Eastern Europe. The Obama Administration’s deployment of a missile defense system in Europe is tantamount to a “dare” to Russia to join in a thermonuclear confrontation. Any such confrontation will necessarily pose an existential threat to mankind.

Russian President Vladimir Putin, however, is far too smart to be drawn into this trap. He has already engineered a series of flanking responses, particularly in Syria, that have added to the accelerating demise of the British and their henchmen.

At the just-concluded NATO heads of state summit in Warsaw, however, the number-one topic of discussion in the corridors was the fallout from the Brexit vote, which has tremendously weakened the British Crown and now threatens to trigger the break-up of the European Union altogether.

The weakening of the British-Saudi Empire forces, including their President Obama, poses serious dangers, but also provides a unique, historic opportunity to end the system of imperial control once and for all.

The fall of the House of Windsor, the fall of the House of Saud, and the end of the Obama presidency in the United States are all in sight. Sane people everywhere should celebrate, while remaining prepared and vigilant for the final swipe of the monster’s tail.

That's why you need EIR's Daily Alert Service, a strategic overview compiled with the input of Lyndon LaRouche, and delivered to your email 5 days a week.

For example: On Jan. 7, EIR's Daily Alert featured the British hand behind the pattern of global provocations toward war. Of special note is British Intelligence's role in instigating the Saudi Kingdom's attempt to set off a Sunni-Shia war. This religious war has been the intent of British strategy since the Blair-Bush attack on Iraq in 2003.

We also uniquely update you regularly on the progress toward the release of the suppressed 28 pages of the Congressional Inquiry on 9/11, which would expose the Saudi role.

Every edition highlights the reality of the impending financial crash/bail-in policies that would realize the British goal of mass depopulation.

This is intelligence you need to act on, if we are going to survive as a nation and a species. Can you really afford to be without it?
