

Zepp-LaRouche in Beijing: Build the New 'Silk Road'

In May 1996, Helga Zepp-LaRouche was a guest speaker at a conference in Beijing, China, entitled, "International Symposium for Development of the Regions Along the Euro-Asia Continental Bridge." Over 460 experts and officials from 34 countries participated in the symposium, whose subject was a grand strategy for developing the entire Eurasian land-mass, by means of an integrated, trans-continental network of modern transport, energy, water, and communications infrastructure. Her speech, delivered on May 8, was titled: "Building the Silk Road Land-Bridge: The Basis for the Mutual Security Interests of Asia and Europe."

Schiller Institute

Following the symposium, Zepp-LaRouche was hosted as the international leader of the Schiller Institute, at seminars, lectures, and private meetings, including a tour of one of China's most important high-technology projects.

Helga Zepp-LaRouche addresses an audience of professors and students in Beijing, May 1996.