

Financial Times Issues Tremonti Death Threat

Tony Barber, writing in the Financial Times online edition April 8, issued a not-so-subtle death threat against Italian economist Giulio Tremonti, under the title “Tremonti and the Serpent’s Egg.”

Quoting Shakespeare’s “Julius Caesar.” Barber urges free-trade advocates to look at Act II Scene I, where “Brutus, when looking for a reason to justify Caesar’s assassination, said that the point wasn’t Caesar’s actions so far, but the future danger Caesar represented. And therefore, ‘think him as a serpents egg/
Which, hatch’d, would as his kind grow mischievous,
And kill him in the shell.’”

Barber begins by noting that when they first met in 2003, Tremonti was wearing braces (suspenders), smoking a cigar, and looking the part of a finance minister. He lambastes Tremonti’s recent book, Fear and Hope, which “lashes out at globalisation and condemns the dictatorship of the market,” and calls for “a new Bretton Woods.” And then Barber ends, “So the message to Tremonti must be: Giulio, wear those braces if you must, but we can’t let the serpent’s egg of protectionism grow to full size.”
